Advanced Assistant Professor or Associate Professor of Fiction Writing

01474

The Program in Creative Writing at the University of Alabama announces an extension of its search and invites applications for an Associate or advanced Assistant Professor to teach fiction writing in a thriving MFA program beginning Fall 1999. We are seeking a fiction writer of national reputation with significant book publication and substantial teaching experience for this permanent position. The MFA is the preferred degree. Expertise in the writing of other genres is desirable but not required. Typically the teaching load for a productive faculty member is two classes per semester. Salary and rank will be commensurate with experience. We currently enroll about 200 undergraduates in creative writing and some 60 MFA students. The writing program has excellent support from the English Department and the University. The faculty in the Program in Creative Writing is comprised of two poets (Robin Behn and Bruce Smith) and three fiction writers

(Michael Martone, Sandy Huss, and the person to be hired). An endowed chair brings two more writers a year to campus, each for a semester in residence, and the endowed Bankhead Visiting Writer's Series annually sponsors a dozen or more readings and short residencies. Alabama is home to both a campus literary magazine and the nationally known Black Warrior Review. About 95% of our MFA students, who come from all over the United States, enjoy fellowships or teaching assistantships, and many are publishing well. Review of applications continues until the position is filled. Priority for AWP convention interviews will be given to those applications received by March 31. Send letter, vita, dossier and writing samples to: Michael Martone, Search Committee Chair, Department of English, University of Alabama, PO Box 870244, Tuscaloosa, AL 35487-0244. Skidmore C

For Langs & Lits, Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs New York 12866

Director of the Office of International Programs. Skidmore College seeks dynamic leadership for the newly created Office of International Programs. This three-person office, working closely with the Office of the Dean of Studies and the faculty, advises students on a host of programs worldwide, explores new international partnerships that cultivate current and future patterns of student and faculty interest, coordinates Skidmore's existing programs in Paris, Madrid, and London, and develops faculty opportunities abroad. The director and staff will be instrumental not only in shaping the study abroad agenda in creative ways but, in a broader sense, for enhancing international education at Skidmore. This larger activity requires international curriculum expertise, a keen awareness of student and faculty opportunities to study, work, and teach abroad, experience with the interests of international students, a creative understanding of global cultural, political, and economic interconnections and differences, and the ability to help with strategic planning in the areas of financial aid, enrollment management, and alumni and development. The director must thus be a person who can work effectively within the highly consultative and cooperative structures of a small liberal arts college and lead the community to a heightened involvement in international education.

Qualifications: Ph.D. with an international focus (or Master's Degree with equivalent international and academic experience), at least three years experience in academic administration (especially in study abroad), college teaching experience and experience in designing courses and curricula, fluency in at least one major language in addition to English. The successful candidate must also have excellent writing and speaking skills, a sophisticated understanding of organizational structures and details, budget planning experience, experience with the newer information technologies, a commitment to broad-based consultative governance, and the proven ability to work very effectively with college students, faculty, staff, and parents.

Credentials review will begin May 7. Salary commensurate with qualifications. Excellent pension, medical, and educational benefits. Resumes and letters of reference should be submitted to: Human Resources-A38IT, File #MG, Skidmore College, 815 North Broadway, Saratoga Springs, NY 12866.

Skidmore College encourages applications from women and men of diverse racial, ethnic and cultural backgrounds.
