Eng, 450 Serra Mall Stanford CA 94305

Director, Technical Communications Program; School of Engineering

2842

<http://soe.stanford.edu/tcp>

The School of Engineering at Stanford University seeks applicants to be the Director of the Technical Communications Program (TCP). The search is open at the level of Senior Lecturer. Applicants are expected to have a doctoral degree and relevant experience in teaching writing and oral communication. Administrative/budget experience is also highly desirable.

The School of Engineering places fundamental importance on developing our students' communications skills. We seek an energetic leader to design courses and activities that are appropriate to engineers of all levels and in a variety of disciplines to prepare students both to complete assignments within the engineering curriculum (e.g., technical papers, lab reports, dissertations, Ph.D. orals, proposals, policy briefs) and to do the kinds of writing and speaking that students will likely do as engineering professionals. The Director structures the program to support these goals, working with faculty, staff, and students, and with the larger community of writing and oral communication instructors at Stanford. In the next few years the TCP will move to the new School of Engineering Center, and the Director will be involved in planning the new facilities.

The Director of the TCP teaches in the program, particularly in supporting the university requirement for writing in the major, and is responsible for supervising all the teaching and administrative operations of the program. The Director is responsible for hiring and supervising the activities of lecturers in writing and public speaking to assist him/her in meeting the program goals. The Director also hires and helps train additional part-time writing and speech tutors (often graduate students) as needed. Administrative responsibilities of the Director include budget and personnel matters.

Applicants should send a letter containing a statement of interest, a curriculum vita, a statement of teaching interests, and the names and addresses of three references. Evaluation of candidates will begin on May 1, but the search will remain open until the position is filled. All materials should be sent to Professor Brad Osgood at the following address: TCP Search Committee, Deans Office, School of Engineering, Stanford University, Terman 208, Stanford, CA 94305-4027; or via electronic mail to tcp-search@lists.stanford.edu

The University of Florida invites nominations and applications for the first director of the Center for the Humanities and the Public Sphere. The initial period of service will be five years; during that period, the individual will concurrently hold the Rothman Chair of Humanities. The mission of the newly-established Center for the Humanities and the Public Sphere is (1) to provide a site for critical and collaborative discussions of the humanities, across and beyond specializations, (2) to explore and elaborate the implications of the humanistic disciplines in and for the public sphere, and (3) to provide a location in which community groups and scholars can creatively interact.

The Center for the Humanities and the Public Sphere has been active in sponsoring faculty and graduate student research groups and conferences, interdisciplinary seminars for faculty and graduate students, and visiting lectureships of scholars and writers, as well as diverse interactions of the community and the university in the public sphere.

Responsibilities: The Director will

- Direct and expand a newly established multi-disciplinary center seeking national recognition.
- Provide intellectual energy and administrative leadership in the Centers research programs.
- Engage in fundraising and other efforts to actively work toward building the Centers endowment.
- Shape the Centers future endeavors and success.
- Oversee outreach programs that link to the community at large.

Qualifications: The successful candidate will

- Possess an established record of teaching and scholarship activities.
- Have a vision for the Center.
- Demonstrate administrative interest and enthusiasm.
- Be experienced in grantsmanship or other forms of fundraising.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) is the largest college on campus, with more than 800 faculty members and more than 12,000 undergraduate students pursuing a variety of disciplines through its 40 majors and 43 minors.

Additionally, nearly 2,000 graduate students are enrolled in the college. CLAS faculty rank among the best in the nation and have received a variety of national and international awards.
