

Contents

Introduction	1
Austin Sarat, Cathrine O. Frank, and Matthew Anderson

Part I: Theory and History of the Movement

The Cultural Background of The Legal Imagination	29
James Boyd White
Law and Literature as Survivor	40
Richard H. Weisberg
Law, Literature: Where Are We?	61
Peter Brooks
Law, Literature, and the Vanishing Real: On the Future of an Interdisciplinary Illusion	71
Julie Stone Peters
Law, Literature, and Cultural Unity: Between Celebration and Lament	86
Robert Weisberg
Literature, Culture, and Law at Duke University	98
Robin West

Part II: Model Courses

Where the Evidence Leads: Teaching Gothic Novels and the Law	117
Diane Hoeveler
Making Crime Pay in the Victorian Novel Survey Course	126
Lisa Rodensky
Teaching Legal Realism: A Senior Seminar on the Realist Novel and the Law	136
Ayelet Ben-Yishai
American Undead: Teaching the Cultural Life of Civil Death	147
Caleb Smith

Teaching Legal Fiction: Law and The Canterbury Tales Mary Flowers Braswell	155
Teaching Early Modern Literature through the Ancient Constitution Peter C. Herman	162
Law and Drama in the Romantic Era: A Model Course Victoria Myers	172
Immigration, Law, and American Literature Alex Feerst	180
Vital Visions: On Teaching Prison Literature D. Quentin Miller	189
Using Critical Race Theory to Teach African American Literature Patricia D. Watkins	197
The Legal and Literary Animal Alyce Miller	206
Native American Literature, Ceremony, and Law Cristine Soliz and Harold Joseph	217
Free Speech and Free Love: The Law and Literature of the First Amendment Hilary Schor and Nomi Stolzenberg	225
“The Gollum Problem”: Teaching Performance and/as Intellectual Property Phillip Auslander	234
Literary Evidence and Legal Aesthetics Simon Stern	244
An Introduction to Law and Literature for English Majors Brook Thomas	253
Law and Literature as Cultural and Aesthetic Products: Studying Interdisciplinary Texts in Tandem Valerie Karno	262
Literature and Law Lite: Approaches in Surveys and General Education Courses Bridget M. Marshall	268

Part III: Texts

Measure for Measure: No Remedy Elliott Visconsi	279
Bleak House and the Connections between Law and Literature Kieran Dolin	288
Guilty Reading: Obscenity Law, American Modernism, and the Case for Teaching Theodore Dreiser's Sister Carrie Florence Dore	296
Literature in Its Legal Context: Kafka Theodore Ziolkowski	307
Dostoevsky and the Law Harriet Murav	314
Law and Literature of the Hebrew Bible Chaya Halberstam	323
Law and Revenge Violence: From Saga to Modern Fiction David H. Fisher	333
Teaching Eighteenth-Century Law and Literature: The Adventures of Rivella Susan Sage Heinzelman	345
Law, Literature, and Feminism: Broadening the Canon with New Texts Nancy S. Marder	354
Neutrality in Law and Literature: Reading the Supreme Court with Joseph Conrad Ravit Reichman	366
How Rhetoric Shapes Cultural Legitimacy: Teaching Law Students the Moral Syllogism Greg Pingree	375
Roger Williams and the Law and Literature of Colonial New England Nan Goodman	385
Sangrado and the Cloven Foot: A Case in Teaching Eighteenth-Century Law Linda Myrsiades	394

Performing the Law in Contemporary Documentary Theater Jacqueline O'Connor	407
“Fight the Power”: Hip-Hop in the Law and Literature Classroom Richard Schur	415
Ten Kinds of Law and Literature Texts You Haven’t Read Lenora Ledwon	425
American Blueprints: Alternative Declarations and Constitutions in the Protest Tradition Zoe Trodd	436
Notes on Contributors	447
Works Cited	453
Index	497