

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction: Teaching the African Novel Gaurav Desai	1
Part I: Theories and Methods
African Novels and the Question of Theory Olakunle George	19
Marxist Approaches to the African Novel Nicholas Brown	37
Why History Matters in the African Novel Eleni Coundouriotis	53
Political Critique and Resistance in African Fiction Tejumola Olaniyan	70
Women Writers and Gender in the Sub-Saharan Novel Odile Cazenave	87
Translation and the African Novel: Reading as Re/Membering Lisa McNee	102
Part II: Regional Imperatives, Thematic Cartographies
Rethinking the Arab African Novel: A Case for Thematization Zahr Said Stauffer	121
Approaches to Teaching the Maghrebian Novel: Allegory at the Crossroads Jarrod Hayes	131
The Novel, Historiography, and the Griot Epic in the Sahel Christopher Wise	154

Approaches to Teaching Islam in the West African Novel Shirin Edwin	176
Unveiling the African Legacy in Spanish: Novels from Equatorial Guinea Dosinda García-Alvite	193
Teaching Lusophone African Fiction Fernando Arenas	205
The Pleasures of the Political: Apartheid and Postapartheid South African Fiction Louise Bethlehem	222
Language, Multiple Worlds, and Material Culture in the Teaching of African Migrant Fiction Brenda Cooper	246
East African Fiction and Globalization Peter Kalliney	259

Part III: Pedagogical and Institutional Contexts

The African Novel in a Course on the Twentieth-Century Novel in English S. Shankar	277
The Francophone African Novel in the French-Language Classroom Mohamed Kamara	290
Introducing African Novels in a Web-Enhanced Community College Survey Course Cora Agatucci	311
Between Three African Locations: Teaching Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart at the Universities of Ibadan, Zululand, and Cape Town Harry Garuba	321
The Blank Maps of Difficult Desires: Sexuality and African Literature in the Classroom Neville Hoad	340

Confessions of a Disinterested Didact: Teaching Nadine Gordimer's Burger's Daughter R. Radhakrishnan	358
Creating Contested Space through the "Nervous Conditions" of Postcolonial Theories Kimberly Wedeven Segall	371
Reading the Popular: Onitsha Market Romance and the Practice of Everyday Life Onookome Okome	386
 Part IV: Resources
Further Resources for Teaching the African Novel	405
Notes on Contributors	415
Index	419